The lovely old veteran

That lonely old veteran, he walks down the street
Digs in his heels, not to shuffle his feet
The children all laugh as he passes by,
He turns his head with a tear in his eye.

He remembers the sorrow, the killing and pain
He remembers the cold, the wind and the rain
Friends that he'd known flash through his mind,
He can see them all clearly even though he's part blind.

He remembers his friend David who was hit by a round,
It ripped through his stomach and all spilled on the ground.
David called his mother with his dying breath,
It is they we remember just before death.

If you see this old veteran, give him a nod,
For he's fought for our country, for us and God
He returns to his park bench, this hero, this vet
And it's his mother he sees just before death.

He lies in peace now, under the ground,
And no longer he hears the bombs falling around.
So those old veterans if you see them pass,
Please treat them with kindness,
For it is for us they still fight,
And it is for us they die.
